CPR is a combination of chest compressions and compression ventilation (mouth to mouth). Chest compressions manually pump the heart when it has stopped while compression ventilation inflates the victim's lungs. To administer chest compressions, link your fingers together, palms facing out and put the heel of your hand on the victim's breastbone.

PALS Study Guide - Heart Savers Training LLC

While CPR is an important life-saving technique, an AED can restart a victim's heart and return the rhythm to a normal level. After CPR has been performed, if the victim is still not responding and breathing for themselves, the AED should be utilized. Failure of the AED to regain consciousness in the victim should prompt another round of CPR.
